2015 Business Survey Report
EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

In January and February of this year, the Charlottesville Office of Economic Development (OED) conducted a survey of City businesses to assess perceptions of the local business climate and determine service needs given the current economy. The OED Business Survey focused on topics such as labor and workforce, sales, procurement, and City and OED services. There was also an attempt to ascertain local businesses' thoughts about Charlottesville’s business climate in the future. The survey was distributed to businesses located within City limits using email. Hand delivery had been used in the past but email has proven to have a higher response rate and less staff is required to distribute surveys and collect the data. In the future, we plan to distribute the survey entirely through email. In total, 154 businesses completed the survey in its entirety; however, 216 participated in the survey. This executive summary provides a brief overview of key findings from the survey. It is followed by a report which more thoroughly examines the results.
